Report on Lecture on 'Satellite Navigation in Indian Perspective'

The Institution of Engineers (India), UP State Centre, Lucknow organised a technical talk on 'Satellite Navigation in Indian Perspective' on 25/08/2017. The Keynote Speaker of the programme was Er. S. N. Sahoo, FIE, Scientist-F, ISRO Telemetry Tracking & Tele-Command Network'.

Memento presentation to Keynote speaker

He described about the satellite navigation at Global level. He said that it is Free, Precise, Reliable, can be used in all weather conditions at anytime & anywhere with unlimited user capacity. There are two types of Major Satellite Navigation Systems (GNSS). Global navigation satellite systems (GNSS) provide coverage all over the world whereas Regional satellite navigation systems provide coverage is limited to one area/Country. He also informed about the systems prevailing at present which are

1. Global system at present are GPS, GLONASS (C/A Code & P Code) Galileo & Compass-Under development (EUROPE/CHINA) and regional systems are Quasi-Zenith Satellite System (QZSS)-JAPAN
2. Indian Regional Navigational Satellite System (IRNSS)
3. Bei Dou Navigation Satellite System (BDS)-CHINA

At regional level presently following systems are working

- Quasi-Zenith Satellite System (QZSS)-JAPAN
- Indian Regional Navigational Satellite System (IRNSS)
- Bei Dou Navigation Satellite System (BDS)-CHINA

Informing about the various categories of its applications he summarised all the five major categorisations viz. for Emergency Calls Location (Determining a basic position), for movement from one location to another location (Car Navigation)), for fleet Management Tracking (Monitoring the movement of people and Things), for Creating maps of the World (Mapping) and for Bringing Precise timing to the world (Timing). He also spoke about the various spectrums for GNSS and necessity of different satellite navigation systems and its implementation.

Earlier Dr Bharat Raj Singh, Chairman welcomed the guest and Shri V B Singh, Council Member and Past Chairman of the centre convene the meeting. The seminar concluded with a vote of thanks by Shri R K Trivedi, Hony. Secretary.

Report on 'Golden Jubilee Engineers Day'

Golden Jubilee Engineers Day was celebrated on 15th Sept, 2017 in the Auditorium of UP State Centre, Lucknow on the 157th Birth anniversary of Bharat Ratna Sir M Visvesvaraya. Chief Guest on the occasion Dr S P Singh, Vice Chancellor of Lucknow University & Guest of Honour Er. Mahendra Kumar, Director Lucknow Metro Rail Corporation garlanded the portrait of Er M. Visvesvaraya. Dr Singh while expressing his views spoke about the role of Engineers in the development of Nation, he said that for faster development and industrialization, Engineers have to be given right place in the society. Apart from adopting new technology, engineers should also complete the projects in time with quality work. Cost and time overruns should be avoided.

Chief Guest addressing the gathering

Er Mahendra Kumar, Director Lucknow Metro Rail Corporation while speaking on the theme elucidated that in a developing India for the role of engineers, four resources are essential viz means of communication, energy, connectivity & trained human resources.

Engineers should be proud of the fact that all these four components are to be provided by them only, which have an important contribution in nation's development. He specially mentioned about the service provided by I.T. Engineers and commended the work done by them at national and International level. Our engineers have made the county proud by their capability and dedication and now they have the responsibility of leading the country ahead in global perspective.

Dr. Bhart Raj Singh, Chairman of the State Centre while welcoming the guests told that Sir Visvesvaraya was a visionary who was awarded Bharat Ratna in 1955. Engineering fraternity since 1968, is commemorating the birthday of Sir Visvesvaraya by paying tribute to the great soul and celebrating 15th Sept. as Engineers Day. Er. V B Singh, Council Member and Past Chairman while paying tribute to M. Visvesvaraya said that his works are always inspiring the whole engineering community. The editor of UP State Centre Er. R K Pandey presented the life sketch of Sir Visvesvaraya. Er R K Trivedi, Hony. Secretary presented vote of thanks. A total of 300 members and their families attended the programme
